STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The valuation of the thirteen towns and cities in Androscoggin is $20,776,073 and the county tax authorized by the legislature is $31,400. The towns and cities have paid every cent of this county tax and, for once, the close of the year shows a clean debt side to the account. The receipts of the year have been $63,077.45. Of this sum $37,400 came from county tax; $4,320.10 from the Clerk of the S. J. Court in fines and costs; $6,083.29 from the county work shop while the balance in the treasury from last year was $18,511.18. The remainder comes from a variety of sources, such as interest, trial justices, board of prisoners belonging to other counties, dog and peddlers' license fees to the Androscoggin Bar, and $897.89 from Lewiston Police Court and $157.07 from the Auburn Police Court. The expenditures have been $31,108.01.

Mr. Horace G. Allen, the newly elected president of the common council of Boston, is a son of Hon. Stephen M. Allen, and married Grace, the daughter of Gen. J. L. Chamberlain, of Brunswick.

A gentleman from Massachusetts has been in Portland for the purpose of securing if possible, a five years' lease of the new opera house, when built. He is already the manager of two theatres in Massachusetts cities and it is said is making each of them pay well.

A novel challenge has been sent to New York by Marcus H. Mahoney, of Portland. Marcus wants to meet any employé of the American Express Company in a match at rate giving. He says he can take a room full of packages directed to towns in all parts of the United States, mark the rate on each package with the weight, and enter the whole transaction in a tariff book quicker than any man in America. He is willing to wager from $50 to $500 on the result of a competition. His record is 1,000 packages in 500 minutes.

Rev. Benjamin F. Pritchard, a regularly ordained minister of the gospel, was called to answer to the charge of being drunk in the Portland Municipal Court, Friday, and responded "not guilty." Then the officer told his story how the minister was drunk and was beating his wife. When the officer had finished his testimony the prisoner straightened up and declared the evidence to be false. His wife interceded for her husband and the charge of beating his wife was omitted. He was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail, but appealed, and was ordered to recognize in the sum of $200 for the April term of the Superior Court. As he can secure no bondsmen it is probable that he will stay in jail until then.

Hancock.

The people of Deer Isle were shocked by the death of Mr. Herbert B. Judkins. While at work on the quarry of Goss & Small, an explosion occurred which threw him into the air about ten feet, taking out one entirely from his body. Death occurred immediately. He was taken to the Chapel at Sunset where his funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. F. Bradford. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss.

Knox.

The shoe factory of Ingalls & Son, at Randolph, will suspend operations at once, and the machinery is to be removed to the factories of the firm at Lynn, Mass. The building which was built about a year ago, is owned by the Randolph Shoe Company, and was leased by them for ten years to S. P. Littlefield & Co., of Lynn, who sub-let it to Ingalls & Son. The closing of the factory will be a serious blow to the town, and sixty hands will be thrown out of employment. It is hoped that the establishment may speedily be contracted for by some good manufacturing industry.

Knox.

The new union chapel was dedicated at Seal Harbor on Wednesday, Rev. Mr. Newcomb, of the Baptist church at Thomaston, preaching the sermon, and Rev. Mr. Bickmore, of South Thomaston, offering the dedicatory prayer. It will be occupied on alternate Sabbaths by the Baptist and Methodist denominations. It is a neat and commodious building, and is dedicated practically free from debt.

Lincoln.

Thomas H. Fossett, of Pemaquid, says the Messenger, came near bleeding to death from a cut in his hand while chopping in the woods last week. He managed to get from the woods to his own door when he fainted, and fell. Mr. Prescott had previous to the day of the accident, been crossing a stream to reach the place where he was chopping, by crawling across on a log; but that morning, he stopped and built a small bridge before going to his work. Had he not done this he would probably have bled to death before he could have reached home.

Short Cuts.

The rush for Washington to witness the inaugural sights bids fair to exceed all previous occasions of this sort.

A justice in Green county, Ga., who has married 140 couples, has received only one fee, and that was a bushel of potatoes.

California fruit growers have discovered that fruit can be kept fresh for a long time by packing it in carbonized wheat bran.

The Washington hotel and boarding-house keepers evidently mean to make the most of the inauguration. Good rooms, it is said, command fabulous prices!

A lady's marriage ring, which was lost sixteen years ago on a farm near Glasgow, Scotland, was recently turned up in plowing and restored to her. It was as bright as when lost.

A New York house has just published the Declaration of Independence in English, French and German in parallel columns, with notes and appendix, political and historical.

During the year 1888 five persons died in Great Britain who left estates valued at more than $5,000,000. The largest was that of Baron de Stern of London, who left a fortune of $17,734,800.

A curious crop is a harvest of 4,000 sponges. It was obtained by an Austrian savant as the result of an experiment of literally sowing small parts of living sponges in a soil favorable to their production.

The most practical development of the nickel-in-the-slot mechanism appears in the machine that gives you two postage stamps for five cents. The twenty per cent. commission you pay is for the convenience of getting stamps in places where they are not, or now will not be, commonly sold.

Friends of General McClellan have just contracted for a monument, which will be erected over his grave at Riverview Cemetery, Trenton, N. J. It will be a Quincy granite column thirty-five feet high on a base nine feet high, and will be surmounted by an eagle with spread wings. The monument is to be finished December 1st.

It is believed that the oldest timber in the world that has been used by man is in an Egyptian temple, which is known to be at least 4,000 years old. The wood is in the form of ties, holding the end of one stone to another. When two blocks were laid in place an excavation about an inch deep was made in each block, in which a tie, shaped like an hour glass, was driven. The ties appear to have been of Shittim wood.

Lord Wolseley, in an article on the battle of the future, declares that one remarkable characteristic will be the absence of nearly all terrific noises which the discharge of five or six hundred field guns and the roar of musketry caused in all great battles. The sound of cannon will be slight, and will no longer indicate to distant troops where their comrades are engaged, or the point upon which they should hasten to march.

No country appears exempt from sad and deplorable visitations. The River Rhone, in France, has recently had a freshet which has almost swept away entire villages. In London, for four days has been of unusual density. The Chief of Police has published warning circulars to prevent robberies, and collisions on the streets owing to the fogs are of daily occurrence. A drove of sheep was actually lost in the streets, many having been killed by the vehicles and street cars.

During a dull and sleepy law case before the Supreme Court at Washington the other day, one of the Justices suddenly roused up and asked counsel, who was reading from the testimony, if he claimed there was any intimacy between the parties. "Go, young fool," said the lawyer, "I will read the testimony and the point." And he read as follows: "Were you on intimate terms with the prisoner?" "Yes, I was." "Is he often called a fool?" The evidence was accepted as conclusive.

The Rev. Dr. William J. Holland, pastor of the Bellfield Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburg, Pa., has been requested by the United States Government to make a scientific exploration of the west coast of Africa. He is to be paid $10,000 and expenses. About a year ago Dr. Holland was selected as naturalist to accompany a Government expedition to Japan. He made valuable collections and discoveries in entomology. His report was so able and complete that the Government wishes to retain his services.

The use of the telegraph instrument has become so much of an everyday thing and such a convenience that men seem to forget what a wonderful thing it is, says the New York Tribune. A newspaper man telephoned to the cable office the other day and asked if a London special despatch had come in there yet. The operator replied that it had not, and said: "Wait a minute and I'll ask London if the copy has come in there." In a few minutes, not more than ten or fifteen, he called over the telephone wire: "London hasn't received the copy yet."

A new textile has been discovered in Russian on the borders of the Caspian Sea. The plant is called kanaf by the natives and attains a height of ten feet. From it a chemist has obtained a textile matter which is soft, elastic and silky, gives a thread which is very tough, and can be bleached without injury. The stuffs manufactured out of kanaf can be successfully dyed in every shade of color, and complete with any of the ordinary furnishing materials now in use. But it is particularly for making sacks, tarpaulins, ropes, etc., that this new textile, from its cheapness, and its extraordinary resisting power, might defy all competition.

Five historical swords have been left by the old German Emperor to the Berlin Arsenal. They are the long sword, with a leather sheath which the monarch wore from 1806-1813; the sword worn through the Austro-German and Franco-German wars, of which the handles of which are inscribed the names of the most famous battles of 1866 and 1870-81; the sword which the Emperor wore at parades, and which was called the "Kongs-rabel;" the sword he inherited from Frederick IV., and his father's old sword, which had been through all the wars against the First Napoleon, and which had its place next to the desk of William I., close to the famous corner window, where the old man was daily greeted by the crowd when the guards passed the palace.

Flowers on Every Hand.

THE DECORATIONS FOR THE INAUGURAL BALL WILL SURPASS IN MAGNIFICENCE ANYTHING THAT THIS COUNTRY HAS EVER SEEN.

The floral decorations which have been designed for the inaugural ball at Washington promise to be more plentiful and elaborate than those of any entertainment ever given in this country.

The ball will be given in the now entirely completed Pension Building in the patio or large court, which is probably the most spacious in the world, being 1,200 by 480 feet. The roof is in three sections with a dome in the centre. From the ceiling will depend garlands of laurel six inches in diameter. It will take 5,000 yards. At each end of the ballroom, will be suspended huge globes of flowers fifteen feet in diameter, around which will be inscribed the words, "Inaugural Ball, '89." These globes are arranged to open in the centre, and by means of wires manipulated by the men stationed below, on either side, as the Presidential party passes beneath, the fragrant hemispheres will part, and a shower of blossoms will strew the path of the newly installed chief ruler and his suite. From the great dome will hang a ship of flowers thirty feet long—the Ship of State—full rigged.

About the upper gallery are ranged terra-cotta vases, in which will be placed rare palms. The three hundred columns supporting the gallery will be draped with garlands of laurels and smilax. The eight large columns which support the lofty dome will be twined with laurel, having palm leaves interspersed. All the galleries will be festooned with festal garlands and flowers, and will hide the gas fixtures and chandeliers. Suspended from the lower gallery will be a series of panels 6x10 feet, made entirely of choice flowers, a panel being devoted to each department of State, upon which will be wrought in half relief, some suitable device. The Navy Department will bear upon a floral background a man-of-war; the Department of the interior, a pioneer scene representing a log cabin, a newly felled tree, a plough and a sheaf of grain; the Post Office Department, a mail-bag and an envelope duly stamped, postmarked and addressed in a flowing hand, to "Benjamin Harrison, Washington, D. C."

Over each panel will be the name of the department it symbolizes, and a gall of flowers.

In the centre of the tessellated pavement springs a fountain. It will be covered by a Japanese pagoda sixty feet high and two stories. In this will be placed the two bands of musicians. Palms, tropical plants and flowers will cover the entire structure. At one extreme end of the building will be a conservatory effect arranged with palms and growing plants and overhung by the inscription "Inaugural Ball, 1889, Harrison and Morton," in gleaming gas jets. The reception rooms in which the Presidential party will receive are to be upholstered in Turkish stuffs and provided with rugs and hangings of the richest and most [illegible] description. No pictures or ornaments will be introduced, but there will be flowers everywhere.

In the centre of the Presidential room is to stand a large table made of rare blossoms. Upon the table will be written "Harrison," and one will be "Morton," and a canopy of the other blossoms will hang overhead.

Mr. Neal, the New York florist at whom has been awarded the contract for all these decorations, says the cost will be about $7,000, and it will take at least seven carloads of flowers to put up the very elaborate designs.

Meeting of the Penobscot Farmers' Club.

The Penobscot Farmers' Club met at the Fuller School House, Saturday, January 19. The meeting was called to order by President Dole. Election of officers being first in order, R. H. Hunt, E. H. Gregory and A. G. Kent, were chosen a committee to secure, sort and count ballots. The committee of officers C. H. Dole was elected President; John Richardson, E. H. Gregory, Vice Presidents; S. Staples, Thos. B. George, Henry M. Brown, Vice Presidents; J. E. Shaw, Secretary; R. W. Murch, A. G. Kent, J. E. Shaw were appointed Executive Committee.

The question for discussion, "What have we learned the past year from experiment with commercial fertilizers?" was now taken up.

R. H. Hunt said he had had but little experience, but considers it a matter of great importance; thinks it starts crops quick and makes them more valuable. Thinks other manure should be kept over and used as old manure; failed on potatoes on account of using new manure.

Mr. Staples said he was but much acquainted with use of fertilizers.

A. W. Dudley, was not well prepared, but thinks we expect too much of phosphates; we use manure at an expense of fifty to sixty dollars to the acre. Tilled one acre pasture land five hundred pounds to the acre. Sowed to oats and had very good crop; thought he got fifty bushels to the acre; got very good catch of grass. Last year purchased twelve tons, intended to use it, but the season was bad and he did not use it. Manure is too expensive to use phosphates for profit—can't afford to apply phosphates every other year rather than manure every seven or eight years.

Adjourned for dinner.

AFTERNOON.

Voted to meet at Grange Hall, Orono Falls, two weeks from to-day.

Mr. Ferguson, of Brewer, said he used phosphate with manure with good results. Last year he used phosphate, two pounds per acre, for oats; land was run out and got a very good crop. On same kind of land without any manure of any kind the crop was very poor, not enough to pay for labor. Phosphate pays better than manure; the crop ripens earlier than with other dressing. He used phosphate for a long time in his crops, and finds it pays.

Mr. Arey, of Hampden, had used grass, and got good crop; ground and phosphate gave good results. Sold $91.50 worth of sweet corn and sold in Bangor, from one-half measured acre; phosphate and manure together. Sells to yard cattle and sheep on land is cheap and good way to enrich a farm. Tried it sixty years.

J. E. Hartshorn has had some experience with phosphate on clay land. Phosphate works very well for grass. Good crop. Had very good stable manure, and very large quantity on one acre; other acre used eight hundred pounds phosphate and got poor barley crop; but next year got very much better barley. Phosphate, and has continued so for three or four years—has tried it repeatedly on clay land finds it to pay very well; on gravelly land it does not pay. Put nine hundred pounds phosphate on a good show of grass afterwards.

A. G. Kent has used it every year; has been uncertain about the proper way to use it with barn dressing, with good results. Starts corn early. He raises it with phosphate in the hill and drills it in spread broadcast—uses it for beans with good results—thinks he would buy stable manure in preference to pure phosphate.

Mark Mills—Have not had much experience with it. Used some, both home and commercial. Finds but little difference between them. Bone meal and ashes as well as any. His neighbor used a ton per acre and got a premium crop; enough to pay for the phosphate. Thinks it a poor policy to use phosphate in such light quantities. Buys manure at the rate of $4.00 per cord, fifteen or twenty loads to the acre, and it pays a good profit.

H. M. Farrington makes all manure he can and buys fertilizers; finds that long manure, unprofitable, as it is made of a poor quality. He uses phosphates to start all crops. Grass works better with phosphate. For grain, manure is best but for grass, phosphates are better. Should use both together. Could not do without it.

Mr. Ferguson understands that manure to be composed of the same elements as phosphates. Now if we can procure those elements cheaper in phosphates than in manure then it pays better. Buys manure and phosphate and finds the phosphate to pay best. Would not use manure alone but would use both together.

Mr. Hunt thinks buying manure pays. Use stable manure, and if he has spare money buys phosphates. Must have manure to feed farm. Thinks it safe to buy manure to put on land.

Mr. Dudley—Wanted to know what can be done by those farmers who are too far from town to draw manure. Thinks it a question whether it will pay.

Mr. Walker—Said we have got to use phosphates. The question is how to use them. He believes in phosphates and uses them liberally.

East Corinth Letter.

(Correspondence of the Whig and Courier.)

W. R. Clark has closed his steam-power older mill for the season, after manufacturing between five and six thousand bushels of apples in cider. The cider made at this mill finds a ready market.

F. C. Tibado has purchased of O. E. Edmunds, the homestead of the late Daniel Swett. This residence is located on the main street and will make a pleasant home for Mr. Tibado. He intends to move in the first of May.

A. M. Bragg, our newly appointed Deputy Sheriff, is giving good satisfaction, and will prove an efficient officer, safe and reliable.

Frank Skinner, of West Corinth, is having a large rush of business in his new carriage painting shop, and his work is giving good satisfaction to his many patrons.

At the annual meeting of the trustees of East Corinth Academy, the following officers were elected: Ira W. Davis, President; Chas. Meaguier, Secretary; George H. Smith, Treasurer; T. McDonald, Agent. The following trustees were chosen to fill vacancies: Geo. H. Smith, Geo. F. Hill, C. E. Edmunds, C. S. Philbrick. This Academy, with the three practical courses of study recently adopted, is meeting the long-felt needs of a large community, and offers advantages which are being appreciated and accepted. Maine has but few, if any, better locations for a large institution of learning than East Corinth. The spring term bids fair to be very large.

Your correspondent recently saw Sylvester Eddy, Esq., of Corinth, who is between eighty and eighty years of age. He is clear in intellect, in quite good health and is very interesting in conversation. Mr. Eddy moved with his father from Eddington to this town in 1818, when it was wilderness all around. He has always been held in high esteem by his townsmen and in past years served them faithfully as one of their town officers. In 1862 he represented his class in the lower House of the State Legislature, and made a good Representative. He now resides with his son, Holman Eddy, in the west part of the town.

Our people are soon to make a move to form a hook and ladder company at East Corinth, as a protection against fires. It is very much needed.

Non-Partisan Temperance.

A SINCERE AND DEEPLY INTERESTED TEMPERANCE ADVOCATE

(For the Whig and Courier.)

Mrs. Florence C. Porter, wife of Rev. C. W. Porter, late pastor of the Congregational Church at Caribou, but now of Old Town, left Caribou Monday to join her husband in his new field of labor in that town. The removal of Mrs. Porter from Aroostook County is a matter of public interest, demanding more than a mere casual notice. Mrs. Porter is the daughter of Hon. [illegible] Collins, of Caribou, one of the early settlers of that town, a life long and [illegible] Democrat, and one of the most [illegible] in business men in Northern [illegible]. [illegible] a mere child Florence Collins realized the great need of temperance work [illegible] tive town, espoused the cause and became one of its most earnest and helpful workers—liberally endowed with all the qualities of head and heart desirable in a public benefactor, she took hold in advance of her years. A gentleman who attended a temperance meeting in Caribou, some years since, was much impressed with the subject of a paper which was read by a little girl who proved to be none other than Florence Collins. Thus she began filling positions usually held by men, until at seventeen she was the worthy Chief of a Lodge of Good Templars. Her marriage with Mr. Porter was also deeply interested in temperance, inspired her with still greater zeal in a cause so dear to her. Later on she was among the first to actively engage in the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in her county. In this position we find her filling important offices in both local and County Unions. In State W. C. T. U., in his mistaken zeal, pledged its influence to political work; Mrs. Porter deprecated the action, assumed, and mourned over the disintegration of the Order which she saw from the beginning must be the inevitable result of such a course. At the Fort Fairfield Union, some two years ago, declared itself non-partisan. Mrs. Porter approved the action, for certain local conditions seemed to have favored the introduction of a partisan resolution in the Caribou union at that time. Feeling confident that at the time was near when non-partisan women must take a stand in defense of their principles, she patiently waited for future developments.

In September, Mrs. J. Ellen Foster visited Mrs. Porter, and recognizing her ability to public work, secured her services until the close of the W. C. T. U. convention in New York. During Mrs. Foster's absence several of the Caribou ladies decided to withdraw from the local union on account of its auxiliary ship to the Prohibition National, and soon after her return they took action in accordance with the decision and organized a non-partisan (independent) W. C. T. U., of which Mrs. Porter was made President. A few weeks later, in response to a request from several of the County Non-partisan W. C. T. U. Convention was held at Caribou. Mrs. C. E. Johnson, of Presque Isle, was elected President, the other officers were also non-partisan, representative women of our County. Mrs. Porter was chosen State Secretary or Secretary at large, the duties of her office being to have a general oversight of the interests of the non-partisan faction in the State.

The following resolution, unanimously adopted by the Convention, well expresses the high estimation in which our beloved Mrs. Porter is held, by those who know her best:

"Resolved, That we contemplate with much regret, the removal from our County of our courageous and faithful sister, Florence C. Porter, whose strong, cheerful spirit has ever been so true a help both in this present movement and our former W. C. T. U. associations."

While we deeply regret the loss we sustain in our social as well as public relations, we gladly commend our dear friend and co-worker to our W. C. T. U. sisters and friends of Temperance throughout the State, as one who is true to her convictions—judicious in counsel, faithful and charitable to all, and a willing and earnest helper in every time of need.

Cough medicines, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is greater demand than ever. No preparation for Throat and Lung Troubles is so prompt in its effects, so agreeable to the taste, and so widely known, as this. It is the family medicine in thousands of households.

"I have suffered for years from a bronchial trouble that, whenever I take cold or am exposed to inclement weather, always fastens itself by a very annoying tickling sensation in the throat and by difficulty in breathing. I have tried a great many remedies, but none does so well as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral which always gives prompt relief in returns of my old complaint."—Ernest A. Hedger, Inspector of Public Roads, Parish Terrebonne, La.

"I consider Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a most important remedy."

For Home Use.

"I have tested its curative power, on my family, many times. During the past thirty years, we have never known it to fail. It will relieve the most distressing affections of the throat, and lungs, whether in children or adults."—Mrs. P. G. Edgerly, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

"Twenty years ago I was troubled with a disease of the lungs. Doctors afforded me no relief, and considered my case hopeless. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, before I had finished one bottle, found relief. I continued to take this medicine until a cure was effected. I believe that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life."—Samuel Griggs, Waukegan, Ill.

"Six years ago I contracted a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and soon developed all the alarming symptoms of Consumption. I had a cough, night sweats, bleeding of the lungs, pain in chest and side, and was so prostrated as to be confined to my bed most of the time. After trying various prescriptions, without benefit, my physician finally determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took it, and the effect was magical. I continued to rally from the first dose of this medicine, and after using six bottles, was well and sound as ever."—Rodney Johnson, Springfield, Ill.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1889.

1889 seems to have received the comments upon its mild and easy going weather by kicking up a regular old fashioned snow storm yesterday.

After reading Senator Morgan's denunciation of the colored race a day or two since the Philadelphia Press pertinently remarks that times have changed and Morgan has changed with them, as the Alabama Senator was one of those who formerly insisted on keeping the negro in the South by means of the fugitive slave law.

The Kansas House of Representatives has adopted almost unanimously a resolution directing a committee to ascertain and report to the House as early a day as practicable whether it is a fact that the British doctrine of free trade is being taught at the State University at Lawrence." The result of this inquiry and further proceedings will be awaited with much interest.

There seems to be no limit to the lawless acts of the so-called white regulators in Mississippi. Over forty families, people who have committed no crime, their only offence being that they were born black, have been driven from their homes and their property destroyed. The Governor it is said will investigate and take the necessary steps to suppress these outrages. Prompt action is what is needed.

Advices from West Virginia state that there is considerable opposition to Senator Kenna in the Democratic party with a prospect that ex-Senator Camden may again be brought forward as a candidate. The Republicans in the meantime are carefully watching affairs with a fair prospect of securing the fruits of the victory won at the polls, but which the Democrats are trying to wrest from them by sharp practices.

The Randall tail that is now attempting to wag the Democratic dog must be amputated.—St. Louis Republic.

On the other hand the Atlanta Constitution says "Mr. Randall is a great leader, wiser, perhaps than Mr. Mills and we shall rejoice for the party's sake when he is advanced." Randall and the tariff are two points upon which our Democratic friends split, but the Randall men seem to have the inside track at the present time.

A vote will be taken on the Senate tariff bill this afternoon. It has been reported that the Senators from Pennsylvania would not support the bill, but Senator Allison expresses the opinion that the bill will pass by a unanimous Republican vote. As several Democrats have voted with the Republicans on proposed amendments it is said the bill may have some Democratic support on the final passage. The country will feel relieved at the thought that there is to be a break in the monotony of the exploded parrot cry sent up by Messrs Vance and Vest each day for the past several weeks to the effect that the tariff is a tax.

The Senate Committee on Public Buildings which is now investigating the office of Supervising Architect of the Treasury have unearthed a very interesting state of affairs. It was not only shown that the Civil Service Reform law had been nullified in the selection of clerks, but it was proved by three different contractors that employes in the architect's office had suggested to them to bid for certain work, it being agreed that if they received the contracts they were to share the profit with these employes. In each instance this arrangement was carried out. They did bid, their bids were promptly accepted, and they shared the profits as agreed. This is the working of Democratic reform exemplified.

The milk and water policy of Secretary Bayard regarding the Samoan matter excites the disgust of the American people. Speaking of this question Senator Frye said that the only stand to be taken by the Government of the United States without risking the loss of self respect was a complete isolation upon a restoration of the status quo existing at the time that the conference attended by the representatives of Great Britain, Germany and the United States met in Washington; nothing less than this, he said, should be demanded before another step is taken. He regarded it as an outrage on the part of Germany to act as she had done, depose a rightful king, set up a rebel to his Government, collect indemnity for alleged losses and the sort of thing while that conference was sitting. The possibility of a war Mr. Frye regarded as too remote to entertain it seriously for a single moment. "Germany would never go to war for so small a matter," he said. He had urged the same views, apparently, upon Secretary Bayard, but without succeeding in stiffening the backbone of the latter.

We trust that the Boston Globe did not omit to read the speech of Major J. F. Hanson, of Macon, Ga., before the Protective Tariff League in New York last week. Among other things the speaker said:

Now, as always, the political South—the solid South—is relied upon to furnish the bulk of Congressional votes in opposition to protection. I admit that through the solid South, made solid for the purpose of local control, we have secured representation in Congress far beyond that to which we are entitled upon the basis of population represented by that portion of our people participating in and deciding our Congressional elections. This gave us abnormal power in deciding the legislation of the country. As the South is solid in support of free trade, and as the North is largely in favor of protection, the power of the South, thus acquired and thus wielded, is an intrusion to the North. Whenever the Union has been assailed, and it has been in jeopardy more than once, the sentiment that opposed it, that sought to dissolve it, was conceived in the womb, nurtured at the breast, dandled upon the knee and rocked in the cradle of free trade. This statement is true, whether tested by the Nullification act of South Carolina or the confederacy formed at Montgomery, Ala. It is true, because the philosophy of free trade as taught at present, and as always taught in this country, has been, and is, based upon segregation, upon conflict and antagonism between sections and States, classes and interests. This doctrine is contrary to the spirit of the Union, which cannot be a union in fact when it comes to be a union of interests.

Major Hanson, who has been a life-long Democrat, thus forcibly expresses the sentiment of the Bourbon Bandit and adopts that which the Globe so furiously denied yesterday some days after it appeared. Truth that confutes wins at fair in the force the Truth.

The latest Cabinet gossip mentions the name of Col. Buck, of Georgia, as a representative from the South. Col. Buck is a native of Maine. At the outbreak of the war he was the principal of the High School in Lewiston, and in the first year of the war he enlisted as a volunteer in the Union army, in which he served until the close, having made a record as one of the most gallant soldiers from his native State. He soon became the Colonel of his regiment. He did not return to Lewiston to live, but, when the war ended, he settled in Atlanta, Ga., where he has since continuously lived. He had been educated as a lawyer when he became a school teacher, and entered upon the practice of law in his new home and has made a comfortable fortune. Col. Buck is a brother of Capt. A. F. Buck, of Foxcroft, who was formerly connected with the railway postal service.

Cleveland's Reform.

The hypocrisy of the Administration's latest move in connection with the postal service is nearly exposed by the Boston Traveller as follows: Civil service reform, under the Cleveland administration, has made a peculiar record, but in nothing have the peculiarities been more striking than in the recently proposed experiment of bringing the railway mail service under the code. When this was first proposed, it was with a great flourish of trumpets, and it was intimated that it would be done immediately.

The Civil Service Commissioners, and the postoffice authorities have, however, discovered that there are difficulties in the way of immediately perfecting the regulations, and it is now announced that the service will not be put under the rules till some time next month. In the meantime, while these difficulties are being overcome, a good deal of activity is displayed in the work of removing Republican officials in this service. Among the large number of recent removals is a superintendent of a Southern district, who has been twenty-one years in the service, and who has never taken any active part in political affairs. Nothing is plainer than that there is a set purpose to displace what few Republicans remain in the service before the new regulations take effect.

No part of the public service was found in such excellent condition on the accession of the Democrats to power and it is to be doubted if any will be left in a more thoroughly demoralized condition. The civil service reform idea had been faithfully applied to this branch of the service for years before the civil service law was enacted, and when Mr. Vilas became Postmaster General, he acknowledged the marked efficiency of the railway service and assured the clerks and other officials that they would not be disturbed in their positions. The pressure was, however, too great, and it was not long before removals began.

Experienced clerks were dismissed for the simple reason, that their places were wanted for the hungry and thirsty, and though protests from business men were forwarded to Washington from all sections of the country, the work of changing the political complexion of the service steadily went on. Finally, in defiance of every pledge and to the serious embarrassment of the Eastern branches, Mr. Cleveland dismissed the railway post-office superintendent at New York, a man who had risen from the ranks and who had been active in organizing the service. The attempt to protect the incompetent and inefficient which is now being made by placing them under the civil service rules will hardly succeed. The reform is too transparent in its motive.

The Clover Club Banquet.

[Special to the New York World.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17. Col. John R. Fellows was introduced by Chairman D. H. Handy at the Clover Club's annual dinner to-night as "the man who knew more about boodle in politics than anyone else present." Col. Fellows then began his speech with a humorous reference to the glass leg of Chauncey M. Depew, who was present, and was proceeding flowingly when the usual Clover Club flood of interruptions, interrogations and derisive applause burst upon him.

"Gentlemen," said the Colonel, "you need not think that you can bore or embarrass me by your quips and cracks after having stood the criticism of the World ever since I ran for office. That paper and several others have endeavored to aid me in the performance of my official duties since I had them to perform. I can only say to these gentlemen that I still hold the offices and draw the salary."

Col. Fellows was then allowed to proceed in peace. Mr. Depew and Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, with Congressman Boutelle, of Maine, were the principal speakers of the evening. Senator Blackburn was the only one who touched politics. Strange to say, the Club refrained from giving the Senator on his recent threatened duel with Judge Rucker. Among the guests were Senator Hawley, Representative Cannon and Adjt.-Gen. Hastings.

CANCERS AND CANCEROUS HUMORS.

It has been known for the last two or three years that there has been an internal treatment for cancers that was doing wonders in curing that terribly fatal malady through the blood, and by great trouble and expense I have been able to procure the use of said medicine in my practice. That, with my newly painless plaster to take away the local growths, will save many precious lives and an immense amount of human suffering.

MAINE NEWS.

FROM THE STATE CAPITOL.

A Dull Day on Monday.

A Small Amount of Business Done.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 21. The House met at 9 a.m. and took up two private bills. Thirty-five petitioners for the divorce of Boothbay and ten remonstrants were present to attend the hearing.

There was presented in the senate a petition of citizens of the town of Harrington to be annexed to the city of Portland, and a bill for the consolidation of the Indian Calais, Waterville, Hallowell and Dover and Foxcroft Water Companies into the Maine Water Company.

Also a bill that in insolvent cases the Judge may, at his discretion, make an allowance from the personal estate to the children under twelve years of age, if the income from their distributive share will be insufficient for their support and education.

The District School System.

It looks as if the district school system will have to go, this year. The chances of securing the passage of a measure abolishing it are better than at any previous time. Superintendent of Schools Luther is the movement. He is a quiet worker and makes no boasts, but merely says he shall try our best to put the bill through. It would be a great stride forward in education in Maine." It is reported that the Educational Committee will report favorably. Nearly every member of the committee favors the plan. The law will provide, among other things, for the election of a board of school trustees in each town, this board to choose a superintendent of schools. The law will meet with opposition, and may not succeed in obtaining a passage.

The Lobster Law.

Fish Commissioner Cousins and assistants are evidently making a strong effort to prevent the repeal of the lobster law. They have numerously signed petitions against the repeal have been sent to fish wardens in various parts of the State. One with 500 signatures will be sent from Bath.

Castine Normal School.

The Trustees of the State Normal Schools will be in session here next week and the Educational Committee will have a special meeting at that time to make an attempt to secure an appropriation to establish a model school at Castine.

WORK OF THE STORM.

Tug H. F. Morse and Barge John Bunyan and Josephine Wrecked.

The Three Crafts a Total Loss.

Several Scanlon Lose Their Lives.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 21. Advices from Hull state that there is a vessel ashore on Harding's Ledge, which is thought to be the tug H. F. Morse, of Bath, and a barge has been wrecked on Post Allerton and it is thought to be the Josephine. She was in tow of the tug Morse. The tug Morse is a large vessel, with two masts. It is not known positively what the vessels are the ones mentioned. Some of the crew of the vessel on Harding's Ledge are rigging and a life boat from Hull has gone to their rescue.

The Morse Stuck Harding's Ledge.

Tug H. F. Morse, Capt. Blake, left from Boston last Saturday for Port Haven, where she was to take a barge, Knickerbocker, which had barges John Bunyan and Josephine in tow. Knickerbocker was for Boston, and the Morse was to tow the Josephine and Bunyan to Rockland. At 11 p. m. Sunday the tug Morse was off Race Point when she met a terrific hurricane with heavy snow and storm. Her decks were continually swept by the high seas. At 2.30 the mate thought she heard a whistle which she thought came from Boston light. Half an hour afterwards she struck on Harding's Ledge. When the tug went ashore the barges were towed heavily. In a short time the towers parted.

The Bunyan Foundered.

The Bunyan foundered close by and the Josephine went ashore on Point Allerton. When the Morse struck on Harding's Ledge she began to fill rapidly, compelling the crew of eighteen to take to the rigging. The boat was launched and a man named Herman Carleton, a native of Nova Scotia, ventured to go ashore for the line. A heavy sea struck the boat and she capsized fifteen feet in the air, drowning Carleton before he could be reached. At 6 o'clock this morning the Hull life boat sighted the tug with the crew still rigging and shot a line on board. It was made fast to the starboard chain and chosen on board at the time by Leroy Westman, the steward, who was lashed to the rigging by the crew.

Was the First to be Taken from the Vessel.

All the members of the crew except the drowned Herman were brought here in an exhausted condition. During the storm all the boats were washed from the deck of the Morse. The tale Lund, of the barge John Bunyan, was picked up by pilot boat No. 8 clinging to a spar.

Of the crew of the Josephine two men were drowned. The captain and mate were saved.

The barge, Bunyan, when she parted from the tug, broke in two, slipping off on one side, carrying the crew with her. The tug and both barges will be total losses.

WASHED OVERBOARD.

Loss of the Steward of a Rockland Vessel.

ROCKLAND, Jan. 21. A despatch received from Baltimore from Capt. Ferrier of schooner Catawamptuck, of this port, reports the loss of steward Charles Black, of this city, who was washed overboard.

FOUR MEN DROWNED.

Broke Through the Ice in New Hampshire.

SANFORD, Jan. 21. Parties living in the vicinity of Wakefield, N. H., report that four men broke through the ice on Great East Lake, Saturday, and were drowned. They were from Farmington, N. H.

MAINE STATE PRISON.

Visit of the Legislative Committee.

THOMASTON, Jan. 21. The committee from the Legislature are visiting the Maine State Prison. This committee will have an opportunity to investigate the 20 per cent. law, passed in 1887, in relation to allowing only that per cent. of convicts to work at any one branch of work in prison. This committee will get no new light on this visit, but must be governed by the reports made by the prison officials of the past year for facts and figures.

A CONFESSED INCENDIARY.

Pleads Guilty to Burning Farm Buildings in Unity.

UNITY, Jan. 21. The farm buildings at Unity, owned by Horace Mitchell and occupied by Mr. Page, who drives the Bangor wagon, were Burned last Thursday night, about 10 o'clock, together with seven head of cattle, one hundred bushels of grain and several tons of hay. Most of the household goods were saved. Suspicion rested upon a young man named Delouier, who had been at work for Mr. Page for a few days, and who left Thursday night in bad humor. Officer Massey started on his track Friday morning, traced him to Carmel, where he was arrested and Saturday afternoon he was taken before Justice Myrick, pleaded guilty and was bound over for trial at April term of S. J. Court at Belfast.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Senate Discusses the Tariff Bill.

A Vote to be Taken on It This Afternoon.

Dilatory Tactics Control the House.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. The Senate took up the tariff bill and Mr. Allison asked unanimous consent to have the debate limited by the ten minute rule after 3 o'clock to-day.

Mr. Vest objected unless the time for taking the votes should be extended twenty-four hours. The question was on the amendment offered by Mr. Brown last Saturday increasing rates on rice.

An agreement has been reached by which the vote on the tariff bill will be postponed until 5 o'clock to-morrow. Speeches beginning at eight this evening will be limited to ten minutes.

The sugar paragraph was passed over until to-morrow, to give the Finance Committee an opportunity to examine the facts and figures presented by the Senator from Georgia (Mr. Brown).

On suggestion of Mr. Vest it was agreed that general debate go on to-day until 5 o'clock, after which the ten minute rules will be enforced and all debate cease to-morrow at 5 o'clock and voting on the bill begin.

Schedule K, wool and manufactures of wool was then taken up.

Unanimous consent was given Mr. Morrill to occupy twenty minutes to-morrow on the tariff bill.

The debate on wools and woolens was prolonged through the day and to a late hour in the evening session, many Senators taking part.

On Mr. Allison's motion amendments were adopted increasing the duty on wools of the third class (valued at over 12 cents a pound), from six to eight cents per pound; fixing the duty on woolen and worsted yarns valued at not more than 50 cents per pound, and valued at more than 50 cents per pound, at 30 and 33 cents per pound respectively, in addition to 10 per cent. ad valorem; fixing the duty on woolen and worsted cloths, valued at above 60 cents a pound, at 45 cents per pound, in addition to 40 per cent. advalorem; fixing the same rate upon flannels, blankets and hats of wool, valued above 60 cents per pound; and upon women's and children's dress goods, composed wholly or in part of wool, weighing over four ounces per square yard, fixing the duty at 35 cents a pound and 45 per cent. ad valorem on clothing, ready made, and wearing apparel of every description, composed wholly or in part of wool; fixing duty on webbings, gorings, etc., 40 cents per pound, in addition to 50 per cent. ad valorem; fixing the duty of Aubusson, Axminster, Moquette, Saxony, Wilton and Tournay carpets at 45 cents per square yard and 55 per cent. ad valorem; that on tapestry Brussels carpets at 20 cents per square yard and 35 per cent. ad valorem; that on ingrain carpets at 12 cents per square yard and 35 per cent. ad valorem; that on treble ingrain carpets 8 cents per square yard and 35 per cent. ad valorem; druggets at 15 cents per square yard and 35 per cent. ad valorem; and that on carpets not otherwise provided for at 45 per cent. ad valorem. Adjourned.

House.

Mr. Vandever, of California, introduced a joint resolution requesting the President to open negotiations with the Republic of Mexico for the cession of lower California to the United States.

That the filibustering element in the House was not yet completely subdued by caucuses or compromises was evidenced by Mr. Cheadle, of Indiana, calling for the reading of the bill.

Mr. Payson, of Illinois, then introduced a long bill incorporating the Farinly Inter-State Railroad Company and demanded its reading. He then introduced a bill to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy and called for its reading in extenso.

Mr. Payson had a double object in filibustering, one being to force the friends of the Oklahoma bill to yield to certain amendments, and the other being to prevent the consideration of the Union Pacific funding bill under a suspension of the rules, being successful in his double object, the Oklahoma men agreeing to incorporate his amendments and the friends of the Union Pacific bill giving him assurances that the measure would not be called up to-day. He therefore desisted from his dilatory tactics and withdrew the bankruptcy bill.

But the trouble was only temporarily averted for Mr. Anderson, of Iowa, came to the front and introduced and demanded the reading of a long preamble and resolution calling on the Inter-State Commerce Commission for certain information.

Mr. Anderson offered a resolution asking the Attorney General what steps have been taken to secure the judicial enforcement of forfeiture of the franchises of the Pacific Railroad Companies.

Mr. Anderson having become aware of a tacit agreement that the Union Pacific bill should not be called up refrained from further dilatory tactics, but another obstacle to the despatch of business was thrust into the House by Mr. Brower, of North Carolina, who introduced a bill for the repeal of the tobacco tax.

Mr. Martin, of Texas, offered for reference a long preamble and resolution in opposition to the present existing tariff legislation, and instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill repealing all tariff legislation and to report a bill imposing a tariff of 42½ per cent. ad valorem on all foreign imports into the United States.

The call of States being concluded, Mr. Warner, of Missouri, withdrew the pending motion to suspend the rules and pass the Oklahoma bill, and in lieu thereof moved to suspend the rules and adopt the resolution providing for a final vote on bill at 4 o'clock Thursday next, with the permission to Mr. Payson, of Illinois, to offer an amendment to the section of the measure relative to town sites.

After a long debate the motion was agreed to.

The House suspended the rules and passed the bill authorizing the five civilized nations of Indians to lease lands within their boundaries for mining purposes; also the bill to increase the maximum amount of international money orders from $50 to $100. Adjourned.

THROWN FROM HIS SLEIGH.

Fears of a Serious Result.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21. Gen. Sheaffe was thrown from his sleigh this morning, breaking his arm. He is in good spirits, considering the accident, and the injury is only slight.

MONDAY'S SNOW STORM.

Everybody Gets a Share of It.

In Three Feet Fall in Montreal.

From Portland.

PORTLAND, Jan. 21. A heavy gale with thick snow prevailed during the night. It drifted badly and the storm still continues with little abatement. No damage to shipping is reported.

The storm began here about eleven last night and in a few hours the wind was blowing a gale, with heavy snow. The snow was this morning piled up in high drifts, making travelling of all kinds very difficult. During the forenoon the snow changed to rain. No disasters are yet reported to vessels.

From Houlton.

HOULTON, Jan. 21. A severe northeast storm accompanied by high wind is prevailing. The snow is drifting.

From New Hampshire.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 21. Five inches of snow fell last night, exceeding in amount all that has fallen this winter.

From Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 21. A heavy southeast gale struck here last night with snow changing to rain, which continued until about noon. There are now signs of clearing. No damage is reported in the city.

The schooner Venetia, Capt. Sweeney, for Portland, Maine, in ballast, parted both chains during the gale last night and drifted into Long wharf, carrying away her foretopmast, fibboom, head gear and earthead, staving her starboard bow and also considerably damaging the sheds on the wharf.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 21. About seven and a half inches of snow fell last night, turning into a northeast rain storm this morning.

CHATHAM, Mass., Jan. 21. The terrific southeast gale which prevailed during the latter part of the night changed to southwest this morning with a thick fog and it is impossible to see anything from the main land at noon.

Three Feet of Snow in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21. Snow falling all night and morning. Nearly three feet on the ground.

From Vermont.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 21. Thirteen inches of snow have fallen in the past 16 hours, making the first sleighing of the season.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 21. The storm of last night still continues. From 12 to 14 inches of snow has fallen.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Jan. 21. Six inches of snow fell last night and is still falling.

FROM WASHINGTON.

News About the Capital.

The Samoan Matter.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. It is said at the Navy Department that it will take at least six weeks for war ships Trenton and Vandalia to make the voyage to Samoa so that the Nipsic will be the only United States vessel at this country from now until after the fourth of March next.

National Woman's Suffrage Association.

The opening session of the twenty-first annual convention of the National Woman's Suffrage Association was held in this city this morning.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Arrested for Embezzlement.

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 21. William E. Kreimendahl, of Holyoke, a trusted clerk for Ingalls & Co., boot and shoe dealers, and proprietor of the Holyoke Beobachter, a German paper, was arrested at Holyoke to-day and arraigned on charge of larceny and embezzlement from his employers. The stealings have been going on over two years. The amount of the defalcation is about $1,200. Kreimendahl pleaded not guilty. The V. M. C. A., of which Kreimendahl is a prominent member, may settle the case.

Boston's Corporation Counsel.

BOSTON, Jan. 21. Mayor Hart has appointed James H. Richardson, of Richardson, Hill & Co., corporation counsel, vice Gen. E. P. Nettleton. He graduated from Dartmouth in 1859 and has been prominent in the city for many years.

Suicide of a Boston Lawyer.

Hon. Charles J. Brooks, a well known lawyer, shot himself dead through the head in the toilet room of the Quincy House this afternoon. It is thought that poor health and the loss of money in a hotel venture at Stowe, Vt., caused the act. He had served in the State Senate and was a member of the present Common Council. He married his second wife five months ago. His age was about forty-three.

NEW YORK.

Mrs. Jay Gould's Will.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. The will of Mrs. Helen S. Gould, wife of Jay Gould, filed in the Surrogate's Court to-day was executed November 6th, 1887. The Executors are Jay Gould and Decedent's brother, Daniel S. Miller, Jr. She bequeathed all her jewelry, wearing apparel and silver ware to her two daughters, Helen M. and Anna Gould. The will sets apart fund of $30,000 each of the children to be invested by their trustees, the securities deposited with the United States Trust Company for safe keeping and the income to be paid to each child for life. Upon death of either the principal goes to his or her issue. All real and personal property is divided between the children, share and share alike.

THE BOOTH-BARRETT COMBINATION.

A Suit by Henry F. Gillig.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. Judge Patterson in the Supreme Court Chambers heard argument to-day upon the application of Henry F. Gillig, formerly manager of the now defunct American Exchange in Europe, for the appointment of a receiver for the Booth-Barrett Combination and for accounting. Gillig says that four years ago Barrett applied to him for financial aid. He induced the directors of the Exchange to assume Barrett's liabilities in consideration of which Barrett made an agreement, February 10th, 1883, to pay him 10 per cent. of his earnings weekly until the amount advanced was repaid. Barrett reduced the debt of $40,000 to $15,000. The money was advanced in view of the contemplated Booth-Barrett combination. Gillig claims that he is entitled to the money under the ten per cent. agreement, which was made with him personally. Col. Ingersoll, who appeared for the defendants, said Gillig seemed to be in quest of a fee for securing loans from his own company. The question at issue was whether the ten per cent. was a bribery of Gillig or a payment to the Exchange. If the latter Barrett owed the Exchange nothing, because of usurious interest exacted. The allegation that Barrett was insolvent was nonsensical, for he is worth $200,000 over all liabilities. An affidavit, in which Booth states that on hearing of Barrett's predicament he sent him two checks for $15,000 and $2,000 respectively, was submitted and the Court reserved its decision.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The Senate Organized at Last.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 21. The deadlock in the Senate was broken this evening by the election of R. S. Carr, Union Labor Senator from this city, as President of the Senate on the 136th ballot. He received 16 votes of the Democrats, who claim that it was their victory. The balance of the organization will take place to-morrow. The deadlock has lasted since the 9th instant. The Senate President elected to-day becomes Governor Marsh if Goff or Fleming be not seated. The Constitution provides this. Thus the danger of a dual government is obviated.

FIENDISH OUTRAGE.

A Terrible Affair in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 21. There is great excitement in Franklin and Hill over the perpetration of a brutal outrage upon a most estimable lady in Hill last night. The wife of David Call, a freight conductor on the Northern Railroad, and a boy about sixteen years of age started from Mr. Call's residence last evening to attend prayer meeting in Hill village. About 8.30 o'clock, after the service, they started for home and when in the lonesome place, known as "The Gulf," about three quarters of a mile from the church, they were overtaken by three men, who had been at the meeting and had followed them. They so frightened the boy that he got out of the team and ran away.

Mrs. Call also Alighted

and started to escape but the men seized, overpowered and took her in the woods where each brutally outraged her. After accomplishing their fiendish purpose two of the trio left, the third remaining and assisting the unfortunate woman over a fence near by, she being too weak to move alone. He then started and left her to make her way home, a distance of more than a mile, in her enfeebled condition as best she might.

Constable J. R. Rowell, of Hill, arrested the men, two brothers named Ballou and a man named Lovering. They are from 19 to 21 years of age and work in Franklin. After being arrested the three confessed their guilt and gave in detail the particulars of their awful crime. The prisoners were arraigned this afternoon. All pleaded guilty and were ordered committed without bail and were jailed.

THE TROUBLE IN SAMOA.

German Deny the Alleged Outrages.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Jan. 21. The German war-ship Eber, which left Samoa on the 13th, arrived to-day. The officers denounce the reports sent from Apia by the way of San Francisco, and declare the statements regarding the alleged tearing down of American flags, burning the houses of Americans and firing on British officers, are unfounded.

England Protests Against Germany's Acts.

LONDON, Jan. 21. It is stated on trustworthy authority that the British Government has decided to uphold the treaty by the terms of which European powers are precluded from obtaining, or attempting to obtain, dominance in Samoa. The Government shares in the United States Government's views on the subject. It is agreed that the action of the German agent is opposed to the letter and spirit of the treaty; that it violates diplomatic etiquette and endangers good relations so necessary for Europeans to preserve when dealing with semi-barbarous nations. Despatches to this effect have been sent to Berlin. Lord Salisbury's latest news from Apia is threatening. The British fleet in the Pacific will be increased immediately by at least two powerful vessels. After Mr. Phelps had left Lord Salisbury to-day, Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador, had an interview with the Prime Minister.

Germany's Understanding with the United States.

The Chronicle's correspondent at Berlin says on good authority that Germany has come to a definite understanding with the United States in regard to Samoa.

FIRE RECORD.

Grand Opera House in St. Paul Burned.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 21. Shortly after 7.30 this morning fire was discovered in the Grand Opera House. The fire originated in the gentlemen's coat room and in about two hours the handsome structure was a complete ruin. The roof of the Fourth street entrance has fallen in and nothing but the walls are left standing. The building was worth $200,000 and fully insured. The top of the court block adjoining took fire. The fire was extinguished at 11 o'clock. The court block was damaged to the amount of about $10,000.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

A Resolution Introduced in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. Representative Anderson, of Kansas, to-day introduced in the House and had referred to the Committee on Commerce a resolution in regard to the late railroad presidents' meeting in New York. The preamble quotes the late confession of Charles Francis Adams that the difficulty in railroad management lies in corporateness, want of good faith and the low moral tone of those in whose hands the management of the railroad system now is. It charges that the meeting lately held in New York was to perfect a plan which, under cover of the avowed purpose of securing the enforcement of the Inter-State law, means a deliberate sweeping violation of the spirit if not of the letter of the most important provisions of said act, and calls upon the Inter-State Commerce Commission to report, in writing in ten days, to the House all the information it may possess concerning the action of the meeting, so far as the same related to the management of railway companies subject to the provisions of the Inter-State Commerce act; to what extent and in what manner said Commission, or any of its members, participated in discussing, criticising, or approving the plans of maintaining rates and rules established by the association, and to accompany said report with a copy of the contract adopted at the meeting, and if no such contract is on file, the substance of such contract, together with the opinion of the Commission as to its legal characters and its effect on the public and said what legislation is necessary to prohibit the form of contract, agreement, or combination, for the prevention of competition, which was submitted at the New York meeting, if the same be not already prohibited by existing law; also to transmit a list of the companies represented at the meeting and the names and official titles of the parties representing said companies.

SINGULAR SUICIDE.

Brought to Light After Three Years.

EXETER, N. H., Jan. 24. Three years ago last fall Peter Tilton, aged 60, a prominent and well-to-do farmer at Hampton Falls, was reported missing. Search was made and a letter was found saying: "Don't search for me. My body will never be found." A spiritual medium was consulted who located the body in a large hole in the river. Search was resumed, but without results. Yesterday, as a man was passing through the woods at Hampton Falls, at the foot of a large pine tree, he discovered a revolver and a shoe, and on looking towards the top of the tree he saw a body. Investigation proved it to be the body of Peter Tilton, which was securely fastened by chains. The revolver by which he had shot himself had been tied to his hand by a string, which had rotted and the revolver had dropped to the ground. The loss of his wife previously is supposed to have caused the act.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Minister Phelps and Lord Salisbury Discuss Samoa.

LONDON, Jan. 21. Mr. Phelps, United States Minister, held a conference today with Lord Salisbury on Samoan affairs.

The French Recruiting Bill.

PARIS, Jan. 21. The Chamber of Deputies to-day passed the recruiting bill, 389 to 169. It is doubtful if the Senate will accept the amendments of the Chamber. The bill is in the interest of the National defense.

A Destructive Earthquake.

SMYRNA, Jan. 21. Three hundred houses were destroyed in Sarabat Valley, to-day, by an earthquake.

THE WEATHER.

For New England: Fair weather, clearing in northern portions; colder; high westerly winds, [illegible] to Portland and probably [illegible] Bangor.

LOCAL MATTERS.

The remains of Mr. Frank Kelley, who recently died in San Francisco, have not yet reached this city.

There will be a meeting of the Society of Associated Charities at the Common Council Room, City Hall, this afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

The Odd Fellows of Winterport will give a ball at the Town Hall on Thursday evening, and they intend to make the occasion a most enjoyable one.

A change has been made in the time of the meeting of the Unity Club this week, and the club will meet Thursday instead of Wednesday as announced.

We regret to announce the death, at about three o'clock this morning, of Ebenezer Trask, Esq., after a somewhat extended illness. A more extended notice will be given hereafter.

Mr. Ira Woodbury, a celebrated driver and handler, recently engaged by Mr. C. H. Nelson, of Waterville, the well known horseman, has entered on his new duties with the Sunnyside horses.

New shoe factories are being started in many Maine towns, and everywhere the industry is prospering. One factory helps another. The greater the number of factories the larger the profits to each.

The Portland Press says: The rumor is incorrect that the Second Parish Society is looking towards Rev. C. J. Ropes, of Bangor, for their pastor and that they have at the present time no one specially in view for a pastor.

There is much talk of a new spool factory being built at Foxcroft. Mr. Dwelley's present factory is unable to supply more than half the orders received, and the works must be enlarged to meet the demand upon them.

The Union street Methodist Society will have a sociable in the church vestry next Thursday evening, and arrangements are being made for a pleasant time. Supper will be served, and a literary and musical programme will follow.

The "Little Lord Fauntleroy" Company arrived in this city yesterday morning from Amesbury, Mass., where a performance was given Saturday night. The members of the company are stopping at the Bangor House and Penobscot Exchange.

The February criminal term of the Supreme Judicial Court will convene on Tuesday, the 5th, with Chief Justice Peters presiding. The session of the Grand Jury will last a week and on the second Tuesday the Traverse Jury will come in. It is expected that the term will be a short one.

Next week the Union Publishing Company will issue the first number of another new paper to be called the Newport Mascot. It will contain the same matter as the other papers published by the company, with the exception of the Newport news, and will be made up in a similar manner.

The Boston Herald says of the electric cars which will next year be running in this city: The electric lines of street cars are working so satisfactorily that the management of West End railway has determined to take off all the horse cars running between Oak Square, Brighton, and the city proper.

We are sorry to learn that the health of Dr. Twitchell, of the Maine Farmer, who has been delivering agricultural addresses in the Provinces, is such as to prevent his continuance. The St. John Telegraph says: Owing to the illness of Dr. Twitchell, those institutes which were to be held on the St. John river, will be cancelled.

Rev. Father James O'Brien, the assistant at St. John's Catholic Church, was presented Sunday evening at the parochial residence, with a handsome gold watch by a number of the members of the parish. Mr. James Tobin made the presentation speech and the recipient, who was taken considerably by surprise, feelingly responded.

The snow plows of the Maine Central and Bangor and Piscataquis companies were out in full force yesterday, most of them for the first time this winter, as the previous storm of a number of weeks ago made but little plowing necessary. They had plenty of work to do as the snow drifted quite badly on the track in some places, and packed in hard against the rails.

Nothing was heard yesterday from the prisoner, John White, who escaped from the jail on Saturday, but he will be carefully looked after and captured if possible. White is about five feet and eight inches tall, weighs about 125 pounds, and has light hair and moustache. He had on a pair of brown overalls and a dark coat. White is a Russian and speaks but little English.

Two large box cars which were given a little too much impetus Sunday on the track on the wharf at the foot of Exchange street, brushed aside the spile and went over the edge of the wharf upon the ice. An engine came to the rescue and finally succeeded in pulling them back upon the rails. The end of one was smashed in and the trucks on both were taken off.

The Woodland Club will have its second meet at Phillips to-morrow, rain or shine, and the arrangements of trains of the former occasion will be in force to-morrow. There will be snow shoeing, tobogganing, coasting and other outdoor sports and card playing, dancing and supper at the hotel. Another very pleasant time is anticipated and a large number will probably join in the festivities.

M. J. McLaughlin, of Dover, N. H., an umpire of the Maine State League, is spoken of as a young man of exceptional qualifications for work in a bigger league. He bears an excellent reputation for sobriety, honesty, capability and undaunted courage. He has many admirers in New England, who endorse him for a place on the staff of some of the larger leagues.—The Sporting Life, Philadelphia.

The surveying party in charge of Mr. C. E. Nickerson, who are making a survey for the proposed line of the Bangor and Piscataquis, between this city and Old Town, have reached a point here at the old engine house just above the Bucksport and Bar Harbor Railroad bridge. They were unable to work yesterday on account of the storm, but as soon as possible will survey around the city towards High Head.

It is said that the social gayeties of the capital this year are not up the average as yet, and several ladies have been heard to complain of the dullness. There have been no Augusta House parties up to this time but a course of five assemblies is in progress at Grand Army hall, which is attended by ladies from out of town. Preparations for the 4th of February reception are under way and it promises to be [illegible]

Our Winterport correspondent writes: A very fine temperance concert was given at the M. E. church, Winterport, on Sunday evening, under the auspices of George Pratt Lodge and Rainbow Temple, and was listened to with marked attention by a large audience.——A bouquet of English violets and pansies was picked in the garden of Mrs. D. H. Smith, on Friday afternoon. They won't pick any this week.

We learn from Blake, Barrows & Brown, the ocean steamship agents, that in all probability there will be a great exodus to Europe this summer on account of the World's Exposition at Paris which opens May 5th and closes October 31st. Those from this vicinity intending to go abroad any time between April 1st and July 1st should lose no time in securing accommodations, as the larger and faster steamers are already filling up for spring sailings.

The spring term of the Maine State College will open February 5, with a large Freshman class. For the use of this class in the department of mechanical engineering fifty additional tables have been placed in Wingate Hall, and much of the drafting work heretofore done in the cramped quarters of the shop, will be transferred to this hall. This change is made possible in consequence of the removal of the office of the Experiment Station to its new building.

A novel challenge has been sent to New York by Marcus H. Mahoney, of Portland. Marcus wants to meet any employe of the American Express company in a match at rate giving. He says he can take a room full of packages directed to towns in parts of the United States, mark the rate on each package with the weight, and enter the whole transaction in a tariff book quicker than any man in America. He is willing to wager from $50 to $500 on the result of a competition. His record is 1,000 packages in 500 minutes.

The Junior class at Colby have voted, at the suggestion of Professor Matthews, to have in place of the Junior exhibition in the winter term a prize debate. It is thought that this will establish a precedent. For a long time past this exhibition has been considered a consolation race, that is, an exhibition in which the heretofore unknown appears and disappears. But to obtain a place in the debate will be an honor. There will be six participants chosen on the merit of an article on the subject to be debated.

NEW PRISON GAME. The County Commissioners contemplate making an immediate change in the suits of the prisoners at the jail in this city. At present they consist of suits of half blue and half brown. The objection to them is that when they become soiled or worn they are not easily distinguishable from ordinary rough clothing, and an escaping prisoner might attract no attention whatever as far his dress went. It is proposed to have in the future suits of alternate black and white stripes running horizontally, similar to those worn by the prisoners in the Cumberland county jail. They will be made by the prisoners now in jail. The new suit will be a much more effective means of detection in the case of an escaping prisoner, who would have considerable difficulty in concealing the striped garments, which would easily attract attention.

INTERESTING PAMPHLETS. Two interesting little pamphlets are soon to be issued from the officers of the State College. One is an account of the proceedings at the dedication of Coburn Hall and the other a bulletin from the Natural History laboratory. The former comprises the historical address of President Oak, of the Board of Trustees; poem by Mrs. President Fernald; list of officers and instructors in the college from the opening in 1867 to the present time; report of the building committee; and speeches delivered on the occasion by Prof. F. L. Harvey, Hon. Samuel Libbey and Hon. H. M. Heath, of the Senate and Dr. J. T. Cushing, of the House of Representatives. The latter comprises a catalogue of the minerals and rocks in the Museum, and is issued as Volume I, No. 1 of the Natural History Bulletin. It has been made by Prof. F. L. Harvey and is arranged according to Dana's system.

A PLEASANT ASPECT. Our East Corinth correspondent writes: One of the most enjoyable social events of the season at East Corinth occurred on the evening of the 11th inst. at the residence of Jos. W. Davis, Esq., it being his birthday. Mr. Davis and his estimable wife, with their intelligent and well disciplined children ever make it pleasant for friends who visit their happy home and this birthday party certainly was no exception. A good number of Mr. Davis' neighbors were present and they expressed their friendship and the respect and high esteem in which they hold him as a man, by making him a beautiful present. The presentation was made in fitting remarks by Rev. A. J. Lockhart. This token of friendship was a surprise to Mr. Davis which made it all the more a pleasure to him and those present. Mr. Davis by his brief but very thoughtful response could but convince one that his friends are many and very highly valued by him. Misses Cora White and Ivy Davis rendered some very excellent music on the organ.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE NOTES. Mr. C. L. Brownson, Yale '87, is filling the position of tutor in Greek this term. He is highly recommended and brings to his work a thorough knowledge of the Greek language and literature.——The base ball team has begun its winter practice in the gymnasium. They are doing good work and in the spring will doubtless be able to make an excellent showing.——A movement to have a course of lectures during the winter is being agitated and it should be successful. Many of the leading lecturers and scholars could be easily secured and the lectures would be a source of great profit to the students.——The Senior class will take up the History of Philosophy this winter under President Hyde. The text book used in Seelye's translation of Schwegler's work on the subject.——The Bowdoin library ranks tenth among the college libraries of the country.——The Juniors and Seniors are taking up the study of German under the new plan devised by Prof. Johnson and are much pleased with it.——Mr. S. A. Holt, of Winchester, Mass., of the class of '46, has given a liberal sum to the library, by means of which a large number of new books on the Bible have been purchased to be used in the new course.——Lasell, '92, has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the bass in the Glee Club. Gately, '92, will probably be the yodler.——Prof. Little has sent out a preliminary list of Bowdoin men in the war, which, when revised and corrected, will be placed on the new bronze tablets for Memorial Hall. There are three hundred names and it is hoped to have the list complete by February 1st.——The Orient says: "Gourmet's Spot—Mountain," quoth a rugger, as a [illegible]

Owing to the stormy weather yesterday there was no meeting of the Musical Club at the residence of Mr. G. T. Moody, on Broadway, as was intended.

In the United States Senate, on Saturday, Senator Hale introduced a bill for the erection of a new keeper's dwelling at Bear Island Light Station, Me., to cost $3,750; to establish a fog signal on Great Duck or Long Island, Me., to cost $30,000; to establish a light upon Green Island, near the entrance to Burnt Coat Harbor, Me., to cost $12,000; to construct a new steam tender for the first lighthouse district, at a cost not to exceed $80,000.

Four hundred and eighty thousand salmon eggs will be shipped to New York this week from the Government hatchery at Orland. Five hundred thousand eggs have already been freed from the unfecundated, which were found to constitute less than 2 per cent., which is a very small showing of poor eggs. Most of the eggs will be shipped this month, one hundred and fifty thousand will, however, be reserved to be hatched and artificially reared.

A PLEASANT TRIP. Messrs. A. H. Babcock and E. H. Blake are about to start on a trip which, at this season of the year, cannot fail to be a delightful one, judging from the experience of the writer who went over a part of the route many years ago. They will leave New York for Cuba on the 26th instant and after making a tour of the island will visit Mexico, where they will meet an old friend and former townsman, Fred L. Gurney, who is now located in the Mexican capital. From there Mr. Blake will return home while Mr. Babcock will extend his trip to the Pacific coast and home by way of one of the Pacific Railroad routes. We wish them much pleasure from their trip.

SERIOUS ILLNESS. We regret to learn that Dr. Galen J. Tribou, of Stockbridge, who passed through this city Saturday for Boston, for treatment on account of dropsy of the heart, is in a very low condition, as appears by despatches received here yesterday, and his brother, Mr. Arthur Tribou, of this city, left here on last night's train to join him. His sister's husband, Mr. Henry H. Snow, of this city, went up with him Saturday night, and still remains there. Chaplain D. H. Tribou, U. S. N., another brother, who is stationed in Philadelphia, was expected to arrive in Boston yesterday. Dr. Tribou has been a great sufferer for some time, and went to Boston to resort to a surgical operation as a last resort. Further news from him is anxiously awaited by his many friends here.

A RODEO GALLERY. A new scheme has lately been developed for the assistance of bank officials in protecting themselves against criminals, and Mr. McKinsley, of New York, was in the city yesterday forenoon on business connected with that matter. He had a large volume containing the photographs and sketches of nearly three hundred of the best known criminals and bank workers in the country, which is published by the firm that he represents. From time to time as other criminals are made known to the detectives and police in the different cities, the photographs are obtained and supplemented to the book issued and sent to the subscribers. It is the intention also to have information sent to the different banks which have taken the work whenever any of the bank workers leave New York City, so that a lookout can be kept for them. Mr. McKinsley visited each of the banks in this city yesterday afternoon, and at all but one a volume was subscribed for. He is making a tour of the New England States, calling at the banks alone, and has had very many subscribers. Mr. McKinsley is recommended to the bank officials in a letter which he has from Inspector Byrnes, of New York.

THE STORM. The spell of pleasant weather with bare ground was broken yesterday by the arrival of a blizzardy snow storm which began early in the morning and continued until late in the afternoon, when it cleared off. During that time about nine inches of snow fell and the long awaited sleighing has come at last, how long to tarry remains to be seen. The snow is welcome, however boisterous its coming may have been. The wind blew all day and kept the light snow flying about in pedestrians' faces, so that it was not as pleasant walking about the streets as it might have been. The storm being so heavy naturally created some delay on the railroads, but all of the trains were as nearly on time as could have been expected under the circumstances. The morning train were but a few minutes late, the noon train from the west was forty-five minutes late, the mixed train due at noon two hours and the mixed noon out one and a half hours and the evening train from the west was about fifty-five minutes behind time. The stages were somewhat delayed by the snow. As soon as the snow becomes trodden, it will be excellent sleighing.

It is reported that there were not enough Commercials on hand to supply the demand on Wednesday morning. "The milk in the cocoanut lies in the fact" that to have what one does, and says, chronicled in the paper, (if it be of a flattering nature) increases its sale as well as stimulates public curiosity. AMUSEMENTS.

Little Lord Fauntleroy.

As was expected, since the attraction was "Little Lord Fauntleroy," a very large audience assembled at the Opera House last evening in anticipation of a rare treat, and that the realization was fully equal to the foretaste was borne out by the frequent expressions of delight and amusement that were given by the audience during the progress of the play, which, while it is of the usual length of theatrical performances, seemed hardly long enough, so absorbing was the interest throughout. Mrs. Burnett has succeeded in making a most effective dramatization of her charming story, which is a beautiful tribute to a child's love and purity. The strength of the piece lies in its pathos, but there is no sadness in it, for happiness and good cheer are predominant. While the listener is at one moment touched by the sweetness of character of little "Lord Fauntleroy," at the next his simplicity and artless sayings cause unfounded mirth. The kindest feelings and purest emotions are aroused with a force that is irresistable. The different characters, which center around the child hero are drawn with great skill and serve to intensify the effect.

The company into whose hands has been intrusted the presentation is one of unusual excellence and thoroughly capable of giving it with the best of effect. It was a thoroughly pleased audience that witnessed the play last evening and on all sides were heard expressions of pleasure.

Master Willie Eddinger, from the first occupied a warm spot in the hearts of the audience and his acting was charming in its naturalness. There was no overdoing or affectation, but every movement and utterance was as near perfection as possible. He certainly is a wonderful little fellow and will be held in fond remembrance by all who saw him.

Miss Lowell, as Mrs. Errol, the mother of the little lord, assumed the role with most excellent effect. She is exceedingly well adapted for the part which is a calm, interesting one. Mr. Haswin made a telling impression as the "Earl of Dorincourt," and showed a careful appreciation of what was intended to be conveyed by the part. Mr. Bassett's impersonation of the character of "Mr. Hobbs" was a most clever one and kept the audience in a state of good humor whenever he was before the footlights. Miss Wheatcroft made the most of her character, that of "Minna," a fille de Bernhard, the violinistor, and Miss Ralston as "Mary," were all highly satisfactory.

The play will be repeated to-night with Bello Rose, who alternates with Master Eddinger, in the title role, and deserves another crowded house.

Master Eddinger as may be seen by his acting is a very bright little fellow off the stage and many of his cute sayings are told by the members of the company. His salary is said to be $125 per week. His father is a member of the company and takes the part of "Higgins," and of course is proud of his little son, who is seven years of age.

Dockstader's Minstrels.

The Dockstader Minstrels will furnish lots of fun at the Opera House to-morrow evening and will present many new and unique features. They are highly recommended and will undoubtedly give an excellent performance. This body of skilled vocalists and comedians now occupies a place in the theatrical business in New York quite as distinct in its way as that held by Augustin Daly's and A. M. Palmer's companies. They have created a policy of their own from which they have never deviated and which has won for them the high position they hold in the esteem of the most fashionable and intelligent playgoers of the metropolis. With such comedians as Low Dockstader, Willis P. Sweatnam, Arthur C. Moreland, Barry Maxwell, George Marion and Gus Mills, Samuel Murlon and Morris Franks, and such vocalists as John McWade, R. A. Jose, Harry Pepper, John H. Davis, C. F. Nobles, T. H. Garland and W. S. Mullaly, the orchestra and chorus of Washington boys, it is quite evident that the musical part of the programme, which has been such a strong feature with this company, will be carefully and admirably presented.

The McGibeny Family.

The visit of the McGibeny Family is awaited with pleasant anticipations by our theatre-goers, and judging from the reports the realization will be a success. Concerts will be given on next Thursday and Friday evenings and Friday afternoon at 3:30, and each will probably be largely attended. The Manchester Union of January 1st says in its notice:

A rare musical treat was served up to a Manchester audience last evening by the justly celebrated McGibeny family. We will grant that some mixed companies have given an equally artistic performance, but there is no hesitation in declaring that given by members of one family, nothing has been witnessed, that approaches the concert that delighted a good audience at the Opera House last night. It was thoroughly a family affair and McGibeny's large and McGibeny's small all contributed to the happy result. The family combined form an excellent orchestra under the direction of Master Nanie, a ringing brass band with a little tot handling the drum stick and can furnish a vocal chorus that is worthy of the highest praise. When divided, good male, female and double quartettes are found, string quartettes and soloists of a high order appear

Long-Standing

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without avail, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Branch, 70 Lawrence St., Lowell, Mass.

"Last May a large cut bunch broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect, and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my daughter."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Miss.

Wonderful Results.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and I suffered terribly; and as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, I was told by Mr. Tyson, (of Ferndina, Fla.), to recommend me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. C. Wiley, 146 Chambers St., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost intolerable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver supervened. My troubles lasted until I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared, and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Farnham, Haverhill, Mass.

MISS BRETHERTON

By MRS. HUMPHREY WARD,

AUTHOR OF "ROBERT ELSMERE."

"Apparently the only thing that always happens to you is success," said Kendal, rather hating himself for the cheapness of the compliment. "I hear wonderful reports of the difficulty of getting a seat at the Calliope; and his friends tell me that Mr. Robinson looks ten years younger. Poor man! it is time that fortune smiled on him."

"Yes, indeed; he had a bad time last year. That Miss Harwood, the American actress, that they thought would be such a success, didn't come off at all. She didn't hit the public. It doesn't seem to me that the English public is hard to please. At that wretched little theatre in Kingston I wasn't nearly so much at my ease as I am here. Here one can always do one's best and be sure that the audience will appreciate it. I have all sorts of projects in my head. Next year I shall have a theatre of my own, I think, and shine."

"And then we shall see you in all the great parts!"

The beauty had just begun her answer when Kendal became conscious of Mrs. Stuart standing beside him, with another aspirant at her elbow, and nothing remained for him but to rejoin with a hasty smile and hand shake. Miss Bretherton brightly reminding him that they should meet again.

A few minutes afterwards there was once more a general flutter in the room. Miss Bretherton was going. She came forward in her long, flowing black garments, holding Mrs. Stuart by the hand, the crowd dividing as she passed. On her way to the door stood a child. Mrs. Stuart's youngest, looking at her with large, wondering brown eyes and fingers in her mouth. The actress suddenly stooped to her, lifted her up with the easy physical strength into the midst of her soft furs and velvets, and kissed her with a gracious queenliness. The child threw its little white arms round her, smiled upon her and smoothed her hair as though to assure itself that the fairy princess was real. Then it scrambled down, and in another minute the bright vision was gone, and the crowded room seemed to have grown suddenly dull and empty.

"That was prettily done," said Edward Wallace to Kendal as they stood together looking on. "In another woman those things would look done for effect. But I don't think she does them for effect. It is as though she felt herself in such a warm and congenial atmosphere, she is so sure of herself and her surroundings, that she is able to give herself full play, to follow every impulse as it rises. There is a wonderful absence of vanity about her, and yet I believe that, little as she knows of her own deficiencies, she is really modest."

"Very possibly," said Kendal. "It is a curious study, a character taken so much at natural, and suddenly transported into the midst of such a London triumph as this. I have always had a very much attracted and feeling relationship to quarrel with you for having run her down. I believed I shall be reconciled more than you do to-night."

"I only hope you may," said the American, cordially. "I am afraid, however, that from my standard that is worth saying there is not much to be said for her as an actress. As a human being she is nearly perfection."

The afternoon guests departed, and just as the last had gone Mr. Forbes was announced. He came in in a bad temper, having been delayed by business, and presently sat down to dinner with Mrs. Stuart and Wallace and Kendal in a very grumbling frame of mind. Mr. Stuart, a young and able lawyer, in the first flushes of real success at his bar, had sent word that he could not reach home till late.

"I don't know, I'm sure, what's the good of going to see that girl, with you two carping fellows," he began combatively over his dinner. "She won't suit you, and you'll only spoil Mrs. Stuart's pleasure and mine."

"My dear Forbes," said Wallace in his placid, and slurred way, "you will see I shall delight in an angel. I shall allow myself no unpleasant remarks, and I shall make as much noise as any body in the theatre."

"That's all very well, but if you don't say it, Kendal will look it, and I don't know which is the more damping."

"Mrs. Stuart, you shall be the judge of our behavior," said Kendal—"no small Forbes were excellent friends." "Forbes is not a judicial frame of mind, but we will trust you to be fair." Meanwhile, Forbes, we may be allowed a quarter of an hour. Have if you shut your mouth on the subject of Miss Bretherton."

"Mind you this is best," said Forbes, with a touch of asperity. "He looks well, he strides well, he is a fine figure of a man with a big ball-room voice. I don't know what more you want in a German prince. It is the strikingly hyperrefined idiom which spoils all one's pleasure and frightens all the character out of the artistic."

"At which Mrs. Stuart laughed, and, womanlike, observed that she supposed it was only people who, like Forbes, had succeeded via charming the critics who could afford to deal in that fine a remark, which drew a funny little now half peulant, half pleased, quiver of the artist, in whom one of the chief charms of character was his susceptibility to the attentions of women.

"You've seen her already I believe," said Wallace to Forbes. "I think Miss Bretherton told me you were at the Callipe on Monday."

"Yes, I was. Well, as I tell you, I don't care to be critical. I don't want to whittle away the few pleasures that this dull life can provide me with by this perpetual discontent with what's set before me. Why can't you eat and be thankful? To look at that girl is a liberal education; she has a fine voice, too, and her beauty, her freshness, the energy of life in her, give me every sort of artistic pleasure. What a curmudgeon I should be—what a grudging, ungrateful fellow if, after all she has done to delight me, I should abuse her because she can't speak out her tirades speeches—which are of no account, and don't matter, to my impression, at all—as well as one of your thin, French, snake like creatures who have nothing but their art, as you call it, to sustain them, and which, if they have been carefully polished, nothing but what they have laboriously learned with time and trouble, to depend upon."

Having delivered himself of this tirade, the artist threw himself back in his chair, tossed back his gray hair from his glowing black eyes, and looked defiance at Kendal, who was sitting opposite.

"But, after all," said Kendal, roused, "those tirades speeches are her matter; it's her business to speak them, and to speak them well. If you are praising her for qualities which are not properly dramatic at all, in your studio they would be the only thing that a man need consider; on the stage they naturally come second."

"Ah, well," said Forbes, falling to upon his dinner again at a gentle signal from Mrs. Stuart that the carriage would soon be round. "I knew very well how you and Wallace would take her. You and I will have to defend each other, Mrs. Stuart, against those two shower baths, and when we go to see her afterwards I shall be invaluable, for I shall be able to save Kendal and Wallace the trouble of compliments."

Whereupon the others protested, that they would on no account be deprived of their share of the compliments, and Wallace especially had it down that a man would be a poor creature, who could not find adjectives enough of any kind, any sense or shade of sense, to praise Bretherton. Meanwhile, he saw her every day and was in excellent practice. Forbes lighted a fresh cigarette, and in the pause Mrs. Stuart remarked in defending her admiration of the interpretation, that the author herself had commented, and the author was thought, and the author ought to know.

CHAPTER III.

On their arrival at the theatre, armed with Miss Bretherton's order, Mrs. Stuart's party found themselves shown into a large roomy box close to the stage—too close, indeed, for purposes of seeing well. The house was already crowded, and Kendal noticed, as he scanned the stalls and boxes through his opera glass, that it contained a considerable sprinkling of notabilities of various kinds. It was a large new theatre, which hitherto had enjoyed but a very moderate share of popular favor, so that the brilliant and eager crowd with which it was now filled was in itself a sufficient testimony to the success of the actress who had wrought so great a transformation.

"What an experience is this for a girl of 21," whispered Kendal to Mrs. Stuart, who was comfortably settled in the further corner of the box, her small dainty figure set off by the crimson curtains behind it. "One would think that an ordeal like this must stir the very depths of a man or woman's individuality, that it must call every power into action and strike sparks out of the dullest."

"Yes; but how seldom it is so!"

"Well, in England, at any rate, the fact is, their training is so imperfect they dare'n't let themselves go. It's only when a man possesses the lower secrets of his art perfectly, that he can aim at the higher. But the band is nearly through the overture. Just tell me before the curtain goes up something about the play. I have only very vague ideas about it. The scene is laid in Berlin."

"Yes; in the Altes Schloss at Berlin. The story is based upon the legend of the 'White Lady.'"

"What, the warning phantom of the Hohenzollerns?"

Mrs Stuart nodded. "A crown prince of Prussia is in love with the beautiful Countess Hilda von Wolfenstein. Reasons of state, however, oblige him to throw her over and to take steps towards marriage with a princess of Wurtemberg. They have just been betrothed when the countess, mad with jealousy, plays the part of the White Lady and appears to the princess to try and terrify her out of the proposed marriage."

"And the countess is Miss Bretherton?"

"Yes. Of course, the malicious people say that her getting up as the White Lady is really the raison d'etre of the piece. But, hush! there is the signal. Make up your mind to be bored by the princess; she is one of the worst sticks I ever saw!"

The first scene represented the ballroom at the Schloss, or rather the royal antechamber, beyond which the vista of the ballroom opened. The Prussian and Wurtemberg royalties had not yet arrived, with the exception of the Prince Wilhelm, on whose matrimonial prospects the play was to turn. He was engaged in explaining the situation to his friend, Waldemar von Rothenfels, the difficulties in which he was placed, his passion for the Countess Hilda, the political necessities which forced him to marry a daughter of the house of Wurtemberg, the pressure brought to bear upon him by his parents, and his own despair at having to break the news to the countess.

The story is broken off by the arrival of the royalties, including the pink and white maiden who is to be Prince Wilhelm's fate, and the royal quadrille begins. The prince leads his princess to her place, when it is discovered that another lady is required to complete the figure, and an aide-de-camp is dispatched into the ballroom to fetch one. His return, ushering in the beautiful Hilda von Wolfenstein.

From this moment the audience had been impatiently waiting, and when the dazzling figure, in its trailing, pearl embroidered robes, appeared in the doorway of the ballroom, a storm of applause broke forth again and again, and for some minutes delayed the progress of the scene.

Nothing, indeed, could have been better calculated than this opening to display the peculiar gifts of the actress. The quadrille was a stately spectacular display, in which splendid dress and stirring music and the effects of rhythmic motion had been brought freely into play for the delight of the beholders. Between the figures there was a little skilfully managed action, mostly in dumb show. The movements of the jealous beauty and of her faithless lover were invested throughout with sufficient dramatic meaning to keep up the thread of the play. But it was not in the dramatic aspect of the scene for which the audience cared, it was simply for the display which it made possible of Isabel Bretherton's youth and grace and loveliness. They hung upon her every movement, and Kendal found himself following her with the same eagerness of eye as those about him, lest any phase of that embodied poetry should escape him.

In this introductory scene the elements which went to make up the spell she exercised over her audience were perfectly distinguishable. Kendal's explanation of it to himself was that it was based upon an exceptional natural endowment of physical perfection, informed and spiritualized by certain moral qualities, by simplicity, frankness, truth of nature. There was a kind of effluence of youth, of purity, of strength about her which it was impossible not to feel, and which evidently roused the enthusiastic sympathy of the great majority of those who saw her.

Forbes was sitting in the front of the box with Mrs Stuart his shaggy gray head and keen lined face attracting considerable attention in their neighborhood. He was in his most expansive mood; the combativeness of an hour before had disappeared, and the ardent, susceptible temperament of the man was absorbed in admiration, in the mere sensuous artist's delight in stirring and beautiful series of impressions. When the white dress disappeared through the doorway of the ballroom to followed it with a sigh of regret, and during the scene which followed between the prince and his intended bride he hardly looked at the stage. The princess, indeed, was all that Mrs. Stuart pronounced her to be—the pink, stiffly and slender, than even her Toulouse role could justify, and she marched laboriously through her very proper and virtuous speeches, evidently driven on by an uneasy consciousness that the audience was only eager to come to the end of them and of her.

In the little pause which followed the disappearance of the newly betrothed pair into the distant ballroom, Mrs. Stuart leaned backward over her chair and said to Kendal:

"Now then, Mr Kendal, prepare your criticisms! In the scene which is just coming Miss Bretherton has a good deal more to do than to look pretty!"

"Oh, but you forget our compact!" said Kendal. "Remember you are to be the judge of our behavior at the end. It is not the part of a judge to tempt those on whom he is to deliver judgment to crime."

"Don't put too much violence on yourself," said Mrs. Stuart, laughing. "You and Edward can have the back of the box to talk what heresy you like in, so long as you let Mr. Forbes perform his devotions undisturbed."

At this Forbes half turned round, and shook his great mane, under which gleamed a countenance of comedy romance, at the two men behind him. But in another instant the tones of Isabel Bretherton's voice riveted his attention, and the eyes of all those in the box were once more turned towards the stage.

The scene which followed was one of the most meritorious passages in the rather heavy German play from which the "White Lady" had been adapted. It was intended to show the romantic and passionate character of the countess, and to suggest that vein of extravagance and daring in her which was the explanation of the subsequent acts. In the original the dialogue had a certain German force and intensity, which lost nothing of its occasional heaviness in the mouth of Hawes, the large bodied, swaggering personage who played the prince. An actress with sufficient force of feeling, and an artistic sense subtle enough to suggest to her the necessary modulation, could have made a great mark in it. But the first words almost revealed Isabel Bretherton's limitations, and before two minutes were over, Kendal was conscious of a complete collapse of that sympathetic relation between him and the actress which the first scene had produced. In another sentence or two the spell had been irrevocably broken, and he seemed to himself to have passed from a state of sensitiveness to all that was exquisite and rare in her to a state of mere irritable consciousness of her defects. It was evident to him that in a scene of great capabilities she never once rose beyond the tricks of an elementary elocution, that her voice had a touch of commonness in it which was almost vulgarity, and that even her attitudes had lost half their charm. For, in the effort—the conscious and laborious effort of acting—her movements, which had exercised such an enchantment over him in the first scene, had become mere strides and ranges; never, indeed, without grace, but often without dignity, and at all times lacking in that elementary, that easy, if you which is the mark of art.

The poem of child and dalliance was over, and the tragedy had begun, and by the time the scene had ended Kendal felt himself almost in a state of hostility to the author of Miss Bretherton's misfortune, and the author was charged with all the sins of the author of the play.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating — Sick Headache — Heartburn — Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." George A. Page, Watertown, Mass.
